-- The MAILING DATE of this communication appears on the cover sheet with the correspondence address --

Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

1. Applicant is advised that should claim 2 be found allowable, claim 3 will be objected to under 37 CFR 1.75 as being a substantial duplicate thereof. When two claims in an application are duplicates or else are so close in content that they both cover the same thing, despite a slight difference in wording, it is proper after allowing one claim to object to the other as being a substantial duplicate of the allowed claim. See MPEP § 706.03(k).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Aronzo (5796681).

Referring to claim 1, Aronzo teaches a method of displaying examination information during one or more portions of an examination, comprising the steps of: providing a timer for timing the duration of a portion of the examination (See Column 4, lines 35-37); tracking the number of questions answered by a user during the portion of the examination (See Column 4, lines 53-55); and displaying (34,36) information relating to both the time remaining in the portion of the examination and to the number of questions remaining in the portion of the examination.

Referring to claim 2, Aronzo teaches the method, wherein the displayed information includes an average amount of time remaining per remaining questions. (See Column 5, lines 5-7).

Referring to claim 3, Aronzo teaches the method, wherein the displayed information is a number equal to the time remaining divided by the number of remaining questions. (See Column 5, lines 7-9).

Referring to claim 4, Aronzo teaches the method, further comprising the step of displaying the amount of time elapsed during the portion of the examination. (See Column 4, lines 36-37 and Column 3, lines 44-46).

Referring to claim 5, Aronzo teaches the method, further comprising the step of displaying the amount of time remaining in the portion of the examination. (See Column 4, lines 36-37).

Referring to claim 6, Aronzo teaches the method, further comprising the step of displaying the number of questions answered. (See Column 4, lines 57-59).

Referring to claim 7, Aronzo teaches the method, further comprising the step of displaying the number of questions remaining. (See Column 4, lines 55-57).

Referring to claim 8, Aronzo teaches the method, further comprising the step of providing memory for storing information relating to one or more specific standardized examinations. (See Column 6, lines 3-8).

Referring to claim 9, Aronzo teaches the method, wherein the duration of and the number of questions in the portion of the examination is stored in the memory. (See Column 6, lines 1-26).

Referring to claim 10, Aronzo teaches the method, wherein information relating to a plurality of specific standardized examinations is stored in the memory, the method further comprising the step of allowing a user to select predetermined parameters for an examination based on the stored information. (See Column 6, lines 36-41 and 47-50).

Referring to claim 11, Aronzo teaches the method, further comprising the step of activating a visual indicator to alert a user of an event relating to the operation of the timer. (See Column 4, lines 46-48).

Referring to claim 12, Aronzo teaches the method, wherein the user is alerted without using an audible device. (See Column 4, lines 46-48).

Referring to claim 13, Aronzo teaches the method, wherein the information is displayed on a computer monitor. (See Column 7, lines 20-23).

Referring to claim 14, Aronzo teaches the method, wherein the information is displayed on a display of an electronic device. (Figure 1, elements (14 and 16)).

Referring to claim 15, Aronzo teaches a timer for timing an event comprising: a display (31, See Column 4, lines 32-35); one or more buttons (44 and 52) for allowing a user to start and stop the timer; and a visual indicator for alerting a user to an event, wherein the user is alerted without using an audible device. (See Column 4, lines 46-48).

Referring to claim 16, Aronzo teaches the timer, further comprising a sub-event button for allowing a user to time sub-events by pressing the sub-event button during the timed event. (48, See Column 5, lines 21-24).

Referring to claim 17, Aronzo teaches the timer, wherein the display displays information relating to the duration of a sub-event. (See Column 4, lines 36-40).

Referring to claim 18, Aronzo teaches the timer, wherein the display displays an average amount of time allowed for future sub-events during the timed event. (See Column 5, lines 5-7).

Referring to claim 19, Aronzo teaches the timer, wherein the display displays the number of past sub-events. (See Column 4, lines 57-59).

Referring to claim 20, Aronzo teaches the timer, wherein the display displays the number of future sub-events. (See Column 4, lines 55-57).

Referring to claim 21, Aronzo teaches the timer, wherein the display displays statistical information related to the timed event the sub-events (See Column 6, lines 15-17).

Referring to claim 22, Aronzo teaches a method of displaying information during a timed event having sub-events, comprising the steps of: providing a timer for timing the duration of the event (See Column 4, lines 35-37); tracking the number of sub-events during the event (See Column 4, lines 53-55); and displaying information (34,36) relating to both the time remaining in the event and to the number of sub-events.

Referring to claim 23, Aronzo teaches the method wherein the displayed information includes an average amount of time remaining per remaining sub-event. (See Column 5, lines 5-7).

Referring to claim 24, Aronzo teaches the method wherein the displayed information includes the number of past sub-events. (See Column 4, lines 57-59).

Referring to claim 25, Aronzo teaches the method wherein the displayed information includes the number of sub-events left during the timed event. (See Column 4, lines 57-59).

Art Unit: 2854

Referring to claim 26, Aronzo teaches the method, further comprising the step of activating a visual indicator to alert a user of the end of a timed period. (See Column 4, lines 46-48).

Referring to claim 27, Aronzo teaches the method, wherein the user is alerted without using sound. (See Column 4, lines 46-48).
